CIRCULATION THURSDAY
5604.Shoe PricesBY FREDERIC J. HASKIN
DirectorJanesville Daily Gazette Information
Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 22.—If the advance shoe prices announced by manufacturers and retailers goes into effect this fall, you will pay anywhere from $15 to $25 a pair for your winter shoes. If you don't believe it, listen to what a large shoe merchant has to say about future shoe prices.

"Prices of shoes are high at the present time, but they are going even higher. The announced increases for fall shoes range from 50 to 100 percent. A pair of shoes which now cost the public $10 or $12 will sell for anywhere from $15 to $20 this fall. The same ratio of increase will apply to all grades of footwear. Today, I find it necessary to duplicate any of my summer stock I have to pay approximately 50 percent more than I paid last season. Orders which I am now receiving for $10 a pair would sell for $15 if I had to go into the present market for a new stock."

This same merchant predicts that wooden shoes will go clattering along American sidewalks in 1920 unless something is done to cut down the price of leather shoes.

Differ As To Cause
Authorities differ as to the cause of the shoe situation. The shoe trade commission has reported to congress that there is "profligate going on in the shoe industry," and some of the more radical members would consider every hide in the country. Others would put a temporary embargo on the export of footwear and other leather products, and take every other possible step to prevent profiteering in the shoe business. The shoe manufacturers claim that an embargo would not help the situation any. They say that the world is approaching a sort of leather famine, and while we in the United States apparently have plenty of leather, we cannot escape from world conditions. They assert that an embargo would place us in a still worse position, for the reason that we import about half of the number of hides used annually in this country.

Believes In Embargo
Senator Capper, of Kansas, who has made a careful study of the shoe leather industry, believes that an embargo for a reasonable period would bring about a reduction in the price of shoes. He is also convinced that there is considerable profiteering going on in the shoe industry, not only among the little fellows as among the big leather dealers and shoe manufacturers. He says that while the cost of production has materially increased during the last four years, there is absolutely no justification for the excessive prices that are being demanded, and which are going even higher. He contends that the increased price of the finished product is not all proportion to the average increase in the cost of production.

Like many other members of congress, Senator Capper favors President Wilson's plan of making the manufacturer's price on every pair of shoes. He thinks this would cut out much profiteering on the part of the middlemen, and would also tend to deter retail dealers from making excessive profits.

In his investigation of the shoe industry, Senator Capper asked the Shoe and Leather Reporter, of Boston, for recommendations as to why the shoe cost more today. The answer he received presents the manufacturer's side of the question, as follows:

Prices Cheap To Europe
"Perhaps the chief obstacle in the way of a return to lower prices for shoes is the fact that the most extreme prices quoted in our domestic market looks cheap to European buyers. It would be better to be called the market of the world than to be called the market of the world. The American public could be informed that shoes have been selling for $25 and $30 a pair for many months in Europe, in both warring and neutral countries. The warring process following peace, and the resumption of free trading, should have the effect of lowering prices abroad while correspondingly raising them in the United States. The shoe prices, world conditions must be faced.

"A similar situation exists in leather. The tanneries of continental Europe have been completely demoralized by the war, and it is a well understood fact that upon the completion of the peace treaty, raw materials for tanning will be in abnormal demand to rehabilitate the industry. The stocks of hides and skins throughout the world are known to be insufficient, except that of Russia, about which nothing is known. It is hoped that large accumulations of hides are held (Continued on Page 2)

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 22.—With southern and yard employees of the Southern Pacific, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and Los Angeles and Lake and Western, and the Southern Pacific out of Los Angeles refusing to move trains, railway officials today were uncertain whether train service which was suspended last night could be resumed today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Aug. 22.—The proposal of a benefit for striking actors met with a setback today through threats of some of the managers to exhibit a show of the stars from appearing in such a show.

In addition to the stage hands and musicians who walked out Thursday in sympathy with the actors, the bill posters, the theatrical baggage, and scenery transfer men are out today.

U. S. TROOPS TO STAY IN MEXICO; INSIDE FACTS ON SHANTUNG TOLD

FIRST HAND STORY GIVEN BY EXPERT

PROF. WILLIAMS, TECHNICAL ADVISER IN PARIS,
BEFORE SENATE.

HAD TO CHOOSE ONE OF TWO WAYS

Says President Declared Sanctity Of Treaties Would Have To Be Recognized.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 22.—A first hand story of negotiations which resulted in the treaty provision giving Japan control in Shantung province, China, was told to the senate foreign relations committee today by Prof. E. T. Williams, formerly the state department's expert on far eastern affairs, and now a technical adviser to the American peace delegates.

Professor Williams said he had "objected very strongly" to the Shantung settlement, but that his resignation from the peace commission had not been due to his opposition.

April 22, the witness said, President Wilson sent for him and asked him which of the proposed alternatives would be less injurious to China—the transfer of the German Shantung rights to Japan or insistence on the execution of Japan's treaty with China growing out of the famous 21 demands of 1915.

"I replied," continued Professor Williams, "that I hoped neither course would be found necessary. The president said that unfortunately Great Britain and France were bound by certain engagements with Japan to support Japan's claims in Shantung and that Lloyd George said he was not in the consideration that the 1915 treaty was executed."

"The president added that the war seemed to have been fought to establish the sanctity of treaties and while some of them were unreasonable, it looked as though it would be necessary to recognize them."

BEACH OF WAIKIKI IS GAY SCENE AS DANIELS ARRIVES

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Aboard the U. S. S. New York, Honolulu, Wednesday, Aug. 20.—Secretary of the Navy Daniels and his official party of officers and men of the dreadnought New York, arrived here today and were met by a large party of Hawaiian dignitaries and the Hawaiian Islands.

Off Waikiki beach the great dreadnought was met by scores of small craft, including motor launches, which accompanied the ship into the harbor.

On the dock were Governor McCarty, the mayor and other city dignitaries. Native girls of Hawaiian, Chinese, Japanese, Filipino, white and American parentage, were there also, carrying gaily colored leis, the necklace of Hawaii, which they threw aboard the battleship until every officer and sailor aboard had the neck dress. Most of the leis were made of flowers, although some were of gaily colored papers and feathers.

From the time he went down the New York's gang plank, Secretary Daniels' time was fully occupied. On the ship he was met by a host of admirers, where he was received with the pomp of a visiting monarch, according to the old Hawaiian custom, by the sons and daughters of Hawaiian warriors.

In the instructions the council set forth that it did not regard the government of Archduke Joseph as in any sense a popular one and declared it would not deal with it.

NON-INTOXICATING DRINKS CAN BE SOLD SANBORN RULES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Aug. 22.—Beer and wines that are not intoxicating can be sold in the federal Western district of Wisconsin under a decision by Judge A. L. Sanborn Friday. Six saloon keepers of Glidden were arrested for selling beer containing from 2 percent to 3.16 percent of alcohol by volume. It was not alleged in the information that the beer sold was intoxicating. Motions to quash the indictment were made on the ground that there was no proof that the beer was intoxicating. Judge Sanborn quashed the indictments and released the Glidden saloon keepers. In his decision, he said: "I think the plain purpose of congress in act of 1918 was to conserve the man power of the nation by preventing intoxication or drunkenness and that the word 'beer' in the statute means only such beer as is actually intoxicating. This does not mean that Judge Sanborn has determined that 2.75 percent of beer is not intoxicating," said Attorney Ralph W. Jackman. "What question was not before the court for consideration. That is a matter of fact to be passed upon by the jury in each individual case as it arises."

RETAILERS ARE NOT PROFITEERS--DUNN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 22.—"People ought to be satisfied with present food prices; there isn't any profiteering in the retail meat and grocery business and consumers want to pay high prices," Thomas Dunn, a St. Louis meat dealer, told the senate agriculture committee today at the hearing on legislation to control the packing industry. "Retailers are hard working people, eating themselves what other people won't use," Dunn said. "There isn't a retail food profiteer in the country."

GERMANY'S COAL SITUATION LOOKS SERIOUS TO EXPERTS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Essen, Thursday, Aug. 21.—A commission of experts appointed by the German bureau of labor to investigate economic conditions and working hours in the coal fields, has completed its examination of the Rhinish district, having visited six mines and 12 working men's colonies, cross examining owners, directors and workers.

Peter Kloeckner, one of the leading Rhinish industrialists informed the commission at the hearing held in this city that the nation was facing an economic catastrophe. He said that, even if the entente levy of 40 million tons of coal was reduced one-half, Germany was heading toward ruin as the country cannot dispense 20 million tons annually.

"If the entente powers enforce this provision," he said, "we must extinguish our blast furnaces, that is equivalent to a cessation of all production. What little coal there would be left us would barely suffice to operate railroads and lighting plants."

Opposes Less Working Hours.
Herr Kloeckner opposes a further reduction in working hours and disputes the assertion that a miner can produce only half as much coal in five and one-half hours as in seven.

In discussing living conditions among miners, Herr Kloeckner told the commission that a workingman's home which cost 8,000 marks when built in peace times, would now cost 25,000 marks. Nevertheless mine owners are building homes for their men but if they build all that are needed the cost will be three million marks. He pointed out the mines cannot stand such a drain and proposed that the government approve a price increase of 10 marks per ton, proceeds to be devoted to building of workingmen's homes.

Appeals To Miners.
An appeal to miners was made by Herr Kloeckner who asked that the men drop their demand for a six hour day for the present and contribute the maximum production which the domestic and foreign situation demanded. One of the miners who attended the meeting attempted to refute Herr Kloeckner's conclusions, declaring the miners had not yet recovered from the physical privations of the war sufficiently to permit them working more than seven hours.

Herr Kloeckner recommended that the commission try to enlist able-bodied students in an effort to divert 100,000 men to the mines to help overcome the present crisis. He believes workmen are gradually overcoming the hysteria born of revolutionary conditions and are showing a more reasonable interpretation of their duties to the nation.

Wilson Flayed For Dreaming and Not Acting

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Aug. 22.—Criticizing President Wilson's "feeble efforts to establish some sort of connection between the present high cost of living and the league of nations," Representative Rodenberg, republican, Illinois, declared in the house today that amendments to the food control act to punish profiteering would not be necessary "except for the inactivity and incompetency of the department of justice."

"I appeal to the president," he said, "to forget the fact that he is the attorney general to solve the problem of living costs. He should quit dreaming about spiritual brotherhoods and devote his time to duties of the office to which he has been elected."

In the past six years there has not been a single effort to bring profiteers to justice. Since President Wilson took the oath of office the department of justice has never once applied the Sherman anti-trust law.

The senate agriculture subcommittee named to consider amendments to the food control act discussed with Attorney General Palmer today, proposed amendments to define "reasonable prices and just profits." Mr. Palmer urged adoption of amendments recommended by him to stop profiteering but no agreement was reached.

LOW STANDARD IS URGED AS ONLY WAY OF HAVING UNIFORMITY

Washington, Aug. 22.—The labor provisions of the peace treaty fall in line with threatening labor evils and point toward a program which may disturb the domestic peace of the United States, Senator Thomas, democrat, Colorado declared in a speech today in the senate.

The international labor conference to be set up, Senator Thomas declared would be an important integral part of the league of nations, though the provisions creating it are not included in the league covenant.

Inasmuch as organized labor correctly speaks of itself as a class, said the senator, it is entirely appropriate today that by including this program in the treaty, distinct recognition and separate organization are given to a class. To chronicle a class, whether by revolution or by treaty, is but to extricate other classes.

"It may be possible to reach the goal of uniformity in the conditions of labor, but I question whether it can be reached otherwise than by making the standard the lowest and leveling down to it. Strict uniformity in world labor conditions can be attained only at the expense of the American wage earner. It cannot avoid the conclusion that these articles designed for his physical and spiritual improvement may make him the equivalent of the continental wage earner."

Facing a gloomy picture of labor conditions in this country and declaring that organized labor was employing methods which threaten the nation's political and social existence, Mr. Thomas declared these were the real matters that should concern legislators.

Those Yanks Changed the Map of Europe

They whittled down Germany, caused Austria to go to pieces like a soap sinner plate, but a great new nation arose from Serbia, doubled the size of Roumania, defined the boundaries of a tier of nations that reaches from Greece to the Arctic coast and the German empire of that continent is the mother of modern civilization.

Through all that thousand years of the past when there has been interchange among men, the center of world interest has been Europe. To most people now living the map is known to change. The picture of it has become fixed in the world mind. Now that picture must be rubbed indicated.

PROGRESS MADE IN BANDIT PURSUIT

Cavalry Camped Last Night
Where There Was Water.
Concentrated At Dark.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Marfa, Tex., Aug. 22.—As long as the American punitive expedition continues to follow a hot trail bandits will remain in Mexico, unless orders to the contrary are received from the war department, Major General Joseph T. Dickman, commander of the southern department announced here today.

General Dickman did not seem concerned over the protest of the Mexican government against the presence of the punitive expedition, saying that it was "the usual fall protest." The punitive expedition is making progress pursuing bandits who held Lieutenants Peterson and Davis, army aviators for ransom, according to official reports received late last night.

The troops camped last night at a place where there was plenty of water. The soldiers scouted the surrounding country throughout the day, separate detachments, but concentrated at dark. The trails are so rocky and steep that the pack mules carrying supplies fell over cliffs and several were lost. A number of horses and mules have died during the trail yesterday, but none of the riders were injured.

Four bandits were killed Wednesday in a mountain fortress, where they had built a blackhouse as a rendezvous. The troops are pursuing two men who escaped into the mountains from the blackhouse.

SHOE PRICES GOING UP; RETAILERS NOW PREDICT $25 MARK

there and that ultimately they will be available and can be added to the dwindling stocks of the world.

Hides Are By Product. It is well understood in the leather industry that hides are a by-product and do not follow the ordinary law of supply and demand. Cattle are raised or slaughtered for their hides, and the hides are produced incidentally. The slaughter of cattle was greatly stimulated by the war by the contracts for canned beef to feed armies, and also for export to feed soldiers of countries allied with us. This increased the supply of hides automatically, but the war developed an enormous new demand for leather, and much of the increased supply was used up in this way.

The report also shows that because of the present high price of meats the demand for hides has become much less, and this means less leather. In sharp contrast to the statement made by the Shoe and Leather Reporter, the federal trade commission, after a thorough and exhaustive investigation of the whole matter, finds that the high prices of shoes cannot be justified by the underlying economic conditions. The commission reports that the large packers control the supply of hides and have made excessive profits out of this business. It is also asserted by the commission that the manufacturers of shoes have also charged unusual margins and that the prices charged by the retailers are not justifiable.

The commission's investigators found that there was a great advance in the cost of producing shoes between 1914 and 1917, the principal increase being in the cost of leather. In this period, the cost of leather advanced from 40 to 100 percent. Other materials used in the manufacture of shoes increased at about the same rate, excepting labor and general expenses, which increased considerably less.

Dealer's Margin Goes Up. According to the report, a good work shoe for men that cost the dealer $1.50 in 1914 and retailed for $2.50, cost him $2.75 in 1918 and retailed for $4.00. In this instance the retailer took a margin of 75 cents in 1914 while four years later his margin of profit was $1.25. The margin of profit on other grades of shoes showed about the same advance.

In summarizing the whole situation, the commission reports that taking into consideration all the circumstances, the high prices of shoes in 1917 and 1918 can not be justified. Leather manufacturers and retail shoe merchants all made unprecedented profits. The commission suggests to the intolerable prices paid by consumers for shoes may be paid by a rigid enforcement of the anti-trust laws; by legislation forbidding producers of hides engaging in the tanning business; and by the adoption of a device, in the distribution of shoes, that will acquaint the consumer with the selling price of the manufacturer.

U. S. Foreign Trade Nearly Reaches Balance

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, Aug. 22.—Foreign trade of the United States came near reaching a balanced state in several years, it has in any month in several years, the department of commerce announced today, owing to an immense increase in imports and a sharp reduction in exports. Imports valued at $245,000,000 entered American ports, the total exceeding the amount brought to the United States during any previous month in history. Exports dropped $30,000,000 from the high figure of June, but amounted to $270,000,000. For the seven months ended with July exports amounted to $1,955,000,000.

$5,000 PRIZE BULL WEIGHING 2,380 LBS. TO BE SHOWN AT FAIR

Woodcrest Clyde, famous $5,000 Holstein show bull, recently purchased from the Pabst farm at Oconomowoc by John L. Fisher and John Wehinger & Son, this city, will be on exhibit at Janesville's Fair and Livestock exposition, Sept. 1-4. Sec. Harry O. Nowlan stated today.

He weighs 2,380 pounds and is being shown as a most magnificent individual, is one of the best bred bulls in America. DRASTIC IMMIGRATION BILL IS FRAMED

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.) Washington, Aug. 21.—A new method of dealing with the incoming alien problem is embodied in a bill being prepared by the house immigration committee. Adoption of the bill would mean, its framers say, literal fulfillment of the so-called "gentlemen's agreement" between the United States and Japan with respect to immigration and would keep out Japanese coolies. Under the Root-Tokihama agreement, Japan is obligated to send no coolies to this country, but, it charged, the records disclose that they arrive by the thousands, with passports as by the thousands, and they remain. Once here it is alleged, they remain, send for "picture brides," raise families and their children become citizens of the United States by right of birth.

Representative Albert Johnson, Hoquiam, Wash., chairman of the committee, says the requirement must allow landing at American ports must break up the great inflow of foreigners.

But the bill does not stop there. Aliens, who under present laws are permitted to come to the United States without passports providing they state in writing their belief that they intend to reside here and become citizens. They must agree to register at least once a year, failure to do so being a cause for deportation. Failure to take out first papers at the end of two years' residence, also is cause for deportation.

SWIMMING BEACH, PLAYGROUNDS, CLOSE

The playgrounds and swimming beaches of the city have been officially closed tomorrow, August 23, after a successful season. At times the playgrounds were kept busy and the beaches had a good attendance practically all the time. The playground attendance dropped off considerably after the baseball season closed, about two weeks ago, and not much interest was taken in the track meets which were held last week.

Parents are urged to take notice that tomorrow there will be no life guard swimming instruction at either of the beaches. The bathhouses will remain open, for those who wish to take advantage of the weather during the remaining hot days of the summer. The pier and diving board will be kept up until later in the season.

Tribbons will be awarded to the winners of the first, second and third prizes in all baseball, track and swimming events, this afternoon at the different playgrounds and at both beaches, 115 ribbons have been prepared. Each year the winning baseball team for the girls, senior and junior boys, will be given a blue ribbon.

Voice of the People

To the Editor: Democracy as a principle and described in our Declaration of Independence must be a provable proposition and simply so. If there has existed advantage and privilege in our country, results in industry cannot be proved as truthful to the principle of democracy and the "trial balance" of our nation's business cannot "balance."

Perhaps figuratively speaking our present economic disturbance is caused by this so-called "trial balance" that does not balance. D. C. DAVIES.

To the Editor: Why wouldn't it be a good idea through the medium of the Gazette to call the attention of the mayor for the city to buy a car of government goods similar to that published list and sell them to our people. There are several vacant stores and I am sure the landlords would donate the use free of charge. There are several ex-procurement men who would give their services to sell it out, and plenty of young ladies to wait on customers gratis.

Yours truly, R. C. Holdredge.

DATA ON SOLDIERS
WANTED FOR ROCK
COUNTY HISTORY FILE

The work of collecting and filing information concerning those who have been in service in the late war is progressing rapidly, a work sponsored by the state and county council of defense and by the state historical society.

At some future time, say 20 years hence, when any person desires to know facts and dates concerning the war service of a relative or friend from the Janesville district, it will be a great satisfaction to the inquirer to be able to refer to the Rock County War History file, which will be located in the library, the new library building, or in the Court House. There the investigator will find a folder, alphabetically arranged, bearing his relative's name. Inside the folder he will find a photograph of the man, newspaper clippings referring to him, picture postcards and letters illustrating and describing his experiences in training camps and trenches; and a type-written questionnaire giving facts about his personal history and the dates of his war office military training, battles, etc.

The committee having the work in charge has been busy for months filing the quantities of information already brought in through church societies, clubs, and the families of soldiers and sailors. So far, however, data has been received from not more than half of the men who have been in service from Rock county. It rests with the men, their families and friends to call at the War History office, room 24, post office, in order to supply the missing information. As rapidly as possible questionnaires will be mailed to all the men who have no data filed for them. The War History office is open every afternoon from 1 to 4 o'clock.

Anyone who can donate or loan a war trophy or souvenir from the battle fields to be placed with the owner's name, date and place of finding in a permanent war collection for the benefit of the school children is requested to notify the War History office.

BACK 'EM AGAIN.

Rock county members of the American Legion have declared that they are going to wage a campaign to put over the bonus bill which will provide state pay for every discharged soldier, sailor, marine and nurse. Their response, no doubt, for a generous effort will be met with a generous response. No doubt, for a generous effort will be met with a generous response. No doubt, for a generous effort will be met with a generous response.

The hysteria of war has died out. Our soldiers have done their "civvy" work and for the most part have taken their places in the marts of commerce or in the whirl of industry. They have gone back to their jobs with the same determination that they brought to the front. They have gone back to their jobs with the same determination that they brought to the front.

But many have suffered financial reverses because they threw aside their civilian responsibilities and donned the habiliments of soldiers. Many left behind them the little home which was to safeguard their future and which in later life, many small businesses were given up, although perhaps they had been started on the proceeds from long hours of toil and personal sacrifices. Nothing stood in the way of these men who did their duty when called to the colors. They did not allow anything to prevent them from becoming the greatest fighters in the world. What they did was not spoiled by blatant and bawling accompaniment. They did their duty and they did it well.

While they were fighting or getting ready to fight at wages of $30 a month, we at home were experiencing the most prosperous season of our existence. Never before had opportunities come to every man to earn, or through trade, obtain so many dollars. We took advantage of the fact that we were the richest nation in the world, and Wisconsin stands high as one of the richest states.

While we were reaping the benefits of the war, these boys who are asking for a bonus to put them on their feet, were protecting us. They were protecting us with their lives. They had no chance to share in the golden harvest which was being reaped by those who were fortunate enough to stay at home. Now they come before us and ask that we give a portion of our share of this remarkable prosperity to them so that they may at least prepare for the battle of reconstruction. They should not be compelled to make this plea. They should not be compelled to make a campaign of any sort.

It is the general belief that it is not necessary in Rock County. But the rumor has spread in some portions of the state that the bonus referendum will be defeated and an eleventh hour campaign is the result. There are some men who forget easily. They can let go of a dollar when they are excited to a high pitch of patriotism, or enthusiasm, but after the novelty is gone—after the martial music has died away—the distance—their eyes clear—the gold which was in their hands, and hearts which were warmed by seeing the boys in khaki marching bravely to the battle line, turns cold and hardens at the thought of giving up a portion of their wealth. These are the fellows who the soldiers are afraid of, and who are the fellows who are going to be reached with arguments which will show them that their duty to the state is not done until every man has at least something to start him again on the way to health, happiness and prosperity.

Rock county folks will back their soldier-boys with the same generous spirit that was manifest in all the sturdy backing given when they were fighting in France.

A TENT WOULD DO.

This incident occurred in the Chamber of Commerce offices yesterday. A working man came and asked if he could be told where he could get a house for his family, which consisted of his wife, three children (none over five years), and himself. He could not be given much encouragement. He explained that he had a job at the Samson plant and was ready to go to work as soon as he could find a place to keep his family. After he was told that such a house as he wanted was not available he said: "Get me a place where I can pitch a tent and I will keep my family together that way until houses are built."

til houses are built. I cannot separate my family and I want to stay in the present place. It happened that someone present knew of a house on the outskirts for rent and the man was taken to it and before the end of half an hour he had made arrangements to occupy it.

This is one of many incidents which come to the notice of the chamber as well as to other agencies which are endeavoring to find homes for people coming to Janesville. It shows the necessity for quick action on the part of those who have the means to build.

FOOD CONTROL LEGISLATION.
News comes out of Washington that the house of representatives is ready to enact legislation which will "put teeth" in the food control bill. It is said that the little corner grocer will be reached as well as the big profiteer. It will be necessary to go farther than the little corner grocer to bring about justice in food control. The little merchant with a few hundred dollars invested is not robbing the people. Drastic measures that would make the real big fellows "cough up" will do some good.

The food control bill as presented by the agricultural committee, provides that the farmers are to be exempted from coming under the measure. The honest farmer, like the honest merchant or wholesaler, need not fear the new law. But right here in Wisconsin are associations which are holding up the supply of food necessities to force higher prices, and in their ranks are farmers. They should be given no more consideration than the grocer or dry goods merchant. In a northern county it is said that a fruit growers' association has forbidden the picking of cherries, although the trees are or were loaded with splendid fruit. The owners of these orchards are powerless under the regulations of this association to put their products on the market until the word is given. That association, whether composed of farmers or not, should not be exempted in the food control bill.

The farmers did not want the extra hour of daylight so congress repealed the law after President Wilson had vetoed an attempt to repeal it twice. That indicates that when the farmers get together on any proposition they show strength. It also shows that representatives of 66 percent of the people affected by the daylight law gave their constituents little consideration. But back to the whole affair. Lurks the suspicion that congress may be attempting to show the president that his power is not so great. In fact, to a politician it might look as though someone was preparing for the next campaign.

Two young boys went to sleep on sentry posts while in France and were sentenced to be shot. President Wilson pardoned them because they were mere boys, neither having reached their majority. A later report from the war department shows that one died a glorious death while defending his flag and country, and the other received wounds while fighting desperately in the Argonne forest. It generally pays to give a boy another chance.

Kaiser Bill Hohenzollern is not even a member in his domestic kingdom. The once autocratic ruler of the German empire is not given the opportunity to pick out his home site; his wife having had the last word in the choice of the future domicile of the exiled emperor. Of course if the allies finally decide to have Bill take up his abode in London Tower, then the country home in Holland will perhaps be given up.

It has been suggested that a "war dishonor" roll be made, containing the names of those who have been guilty of gouging and profiteering while the people were forced to pay the price. We would go just a step farther. When the dishonor roll is compiled, let it be posted in conspicuous places so that all may know who have been traitors to their country and their fellow citizens.

Uncle Sam has some war supplies left which can be purchased at bargain prices by placing an order with Postmaster Cunningham. People in this community have not become much excited about the attempt to reduce the high cost of living, and for that reason the local sales do not seem to compare in quantity with other cities of the same size.

Show girls in Chicago who have gone on strike have been provided with jobs, demonstrating washing machines. In the face of this wonderful evolution, who can say that there is not some good in everything?

It does not take much of a man to be able to fool around until he is laid flat on his back by illness, but it takes a darned good one to get back on his feet.

Since Mother Took Boarders, Bill Won't Work

Their Opinions

One Reason.
Small wonder the prices of shoes have reached the high levels. An inquiry made at one of the big east shoe centers has developed the fact that some shoe workers are paid as high as $120 a week, while many workers make as much as $19 a day.—Oshkosh Northwestern.

Where's the Brain?
Wausau calls itself the heart of Wisconsin. As to the brain, well there's Appleton or perhaps Oshkosh.—Eau Claire Leader.

Patience Needed.
More dissolution suits have been started against high prices, and if the courts show indecent haste they may hand down a verdict by the year 1930.—Marquette Engle-Star.

Housing Notes.
The United States district attorney says he will prosecute all sellers of beer in Wisconsin. Certainly there's going to be a lot of company in the pretty soon. Fond du Lac Reporter.

Shifting the Load.
A lot of Wisconsin people are favorable to the government as a candidate for vice president if for no other reason than just to keep him from being a candidate for United States senator in Wisconsin.—Kenosha News.

Getting Worse.
The print paper situation, which became alarming during the war, is now even worse. The price is going higher, but even though you are willing to pay the price it is most difficult to get paper. And the situation promises no relief for some time.—Antigo Journal.

Take Off the Cover.
Right now we have an alleged shortage of sugar, whereas if all of the sugar held in the warehouses and otherwise concealed were to be unearthed there is hardly a question but what we should find we have all the sugar, salt is needed.—Green Bay Press-Gazette.

Destructives at Work.
The real cause of the many strikes and threats of strikes is to be found in the determined resolve of the destructives to provoke a revolution. Individuals of this group are found working in every labor organization and by fair means or foul bring about the strikes in question.—Wausau Record-Herald.

THE WISHING PLANE

Now, let us think. Oh, yes. Yesterday we had to stop just as the little airplane girls and their mother rushed away from their chalet to dodge the avalanche. Now we'll let Peter go on with his story. Said Peter: "They stumbled and fell a dozen times while scrambling through the deep snow. The mother couldn't use her skills, so the little girls had to do their own thing. When they dug themselves out, they found the avalanche had almost upon them. Thinking that they would not be able to escape they knelt down and prayed. And then a wonderful thing happened. The edge of the avalanche struck the girls and above them. The rock held firm and the snow that it was broken up. What seemed like tons of lumps of snow and fine powder fell about the girls, burying them for a few minutes, but the part of the avalanche that slipped by the rock didn't touch them. When they dug themselves out, hours later they saw that the main part of the avalanche had swept over their house, turning it against it and wrecking it. All three would have been killed by the falling timbers if they had stayed in the house. They managed to reach a neighbor's chalet. When Leopold, from a great distance, saw the avalanche sweep down over his home he gave his wife up for dead. In despair he hurried home. On the way he told his wife that he had seen the girls going home from school, and he was sure that they, too, had been buried. "When he arrived at his wrecked home he started to dig frantically in the ruins to find his family. He was singing tired out and weeping. In the ruins when the neighbor man, who had taken in the mother and her girls, reached the chalet and told him his family was safe. "For Jack and Jane, many other stories of avalanches. Some of them had happy endings and some had sad endings. "One that amused the children very much was about a trained goat. The children of a family on the edge of a neighboring valley had trained a goat for a pet. They liked it, but their father and mother considered it a nuisance, just like your parents probably would if you had a goat that insisted on stealing everything it could find around the house—like that pet did. It was chewing away at some stolen article out in the snow the day an avalanche buried the little chalet. The family, caught in the house, waited a long time in vain to be dug out. They could not open the doors or climb out the windows, so heavy was the snow about their home. Just about the time they had given up all hope, who should come tumbling down the chimney but the goat. He had fallen in while hunting a way to get into the house. This gave the father an idea and he helped one of his sons to climb up to the chimney. It didn't take long for the boy to get help. Needless to say, the goat could steal all he wanted to after that. Copyright, 1919.

"You wouldn't 'do paths' any where?"

"Well—don't you think paths are generally rather foolish?"

"I can't stand this any longer," he said. "I can't. Good bye, Lucy!" He took her hand. "It's good bye—I think it's good bye for good, Lucy!"

"Good bye! I do hope you'll have the most splendid trip," she gave him a cordial little grip, then released it lightly. "Give my love to your mother. Good bye!"

He turned heavily away, and a moment later glanced back over his shoulder. She had not gone on, but stood watching him, that same casual cordial smile on her face to the very last; and now, as he looked back, emphasized her friendly unconcern by waving her small hand to him cheerily, though perhaps, with the slightest hint of preoccupation, as if she had begun to think of the errand that brought her down town.

Lucy remained where she was, until he was out of sight. Then she went slowly into the drug store which had struck George as a possible source of stimulant for himself.

"Please let me have a few drops of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a glass of water," she said, with the utmost composure. "Yes, ma'am!" said the impressive clerk, who had been looking at her through the display window as she stood on the corner.

But a moment later, as he turned from the shelves of glass jars against the wall, with the potion she had asked for in his hand, he uttered an exclamation: "For goshes' sake, Miss!" And, describing this adventure to his fellow boarders, that evening, "Sagging pretty near to the counter, she was," he said. "I hadn't been a bright, quick, ready-for-anything young fella she'd 'a' flummoxed plum! I was watchin' her out the window—talkin' to some young s'fety fella, and she was all right then. She was all right when she came in the store, too. Yes, sir; the prettiest girl that ever walked in our place and took one good look at me. I reckon it must be the truth what some you town wags say about my face!"

At that hour the heroine of the susceptible clerk's romance was engaged in brightening the ratty little coal fire under the white mantelpiece in her pretty white and blue boudoir. Four photographs all framed in decorative plain silver went to the antique's fierce destruction—frames and all—and three packets of letters and notes in a charming Florentine treasure box of painted wood; nor was the box, any more than the silver frames, spared this rousing finish. Thrown heartily upon live coal, the fine wood sparkled forth in stars, then burst into an alarming blaze which scorched the white mantelpiece, but Lucy stood and looked on without moving.

It was not Eugene who told her what had happened at Isabel's door. When she got home, she found Fanny balanced. "Miss Fanny concurred, with a profound fervor, 'you're too well-balanced to let anything affect you deeply about that—that monkey!'"

The four photographs and the painted Florentine box went to their cremation within the same hour that Miss Fanny spoke; and a little later Lucy called her father in, as he passed her door, and pointed to the blackened area on the underside of the mantelpiece, and to the burnt heap upon the coal, where some metallic shapes still retained outline. She flung her arms about his neck in passionate sympathy, telling him that she knew what had happened to him; and presently he began to comfort her and managed an embarrassed laugh.

"Well, well—" he said. "I was too old for such foolishness to be getting into my head, anyhow."

"No, no!" she sobbed. "And if you knew how I despise myself for—ever having thought one instant about—oh, Miss Fanny called him the right name: that monkey! He is!"

"There, I think I agree with you," Eugene said grimly, and in his eyes there was a steady light of anger that was to last. "Yes, I think I agree with you about that!"

"There's only one thing to do with such a person," she said vehemently. "That's to put him out of our thoughts forever—forever!"

And yet, the next day, at six o'clock, which was the hour, Fanny had told her, when George and his mother were to leave upon their long journey, Lucy touched that scorched place on her mantel with her hand just as the little clock above it struck. Then, after this odd, unconscious gesture, she went to a window and stood between the curtains, looking out into the cold November dusk; and in spite of every reasoning and reasonable power within her, a pain of loneliness struck through her heart. The dim street below her window, the dark houses across the way, the vague air itself—all looked empty, and cold and (most of all) uninteresting. Something more sombre than November dusk took the color from them and gave them that air of desertion.

Dinner Stories

Two weary tramps met after a lengthy separation, and sat down to compare experiences.
"Have you been to the front?" said one; "ain't seen yer about lately."
"I've been laid up with the influenza."
"Influenza? What's that?"
"Well, I don't know how I can exactly explain it, but it takes all the light out of yer. Yer feels sort of tired like. Don't seem to want to do anything only lie down and sleep."

"Why, I've had that disease for the last 20 years!" exclaimed the first speaker; "but this is the first time I've ever heard its name."

Bishop Flipper said in Atlanta: "A colored chaplain was addressing a squad of colored men back of Bar-le-Duc."

"Boys," he said, "Satan is powerful, but he is not omnipotent. He is bound with chains, yet he can get at you—and the chaplain pointed to a Mobile soldier—and he can get at you—and he pointed to a soldier from Washington—and he can get at you—and he pointed to a soldier from Paint Rock."

"The Paint Rock soldier gave a grunt."
"Why, boss," he protested, "the old cuss might as well be loose."

The children were telling a visitor what they studied at school.
"I," said the eldest, "get reading, spelling and definitions."
"And what do you get, my little man?" said the visitor, addressing the youngest one, who had listened in a bored way while the others recited their lists.
"Oh, I gets readin', spellin' and spakin'."

After the Battle

"Tidwillow, you've gotta fight Kid Muggins, the bantam-weight champion tomorrow or we lose eight million dollars and three million people will go home to their supper disappointed and pick out their spite on the babies!" Thus spoke the trainer-manager of the Club.

"What's the matter with Hornbecker?" asked Tidwillow.

"Oh, Hornbecker went in swimming yesterday and a dreadnought ran over him, an' he couldn't hold his breath long enough, so he went down."

"But," protested Tidwillow, "I'm ugly as sin now and my girl sighs every time she looks at me, but if I get battered up any worse I wouldn't have the nerve to ask her to marry me!"

"Set between two glaring bullfrog eyes was a nose of great length, while the corners of his large mouth almost met at the back of his head—his face was so thin."

"I'll tell you what," said the manager, "You go and ask her tonight, and if she won't marry you, why you won't care what you look like and you'll fight Kid Bummer tomorrow."

"If she says 'no' I hope he kills me!" said Tidwillow, dejectedly.

He asked her that night.

The next day Tidwillow fought Kid Bummer a bitter, bitter fight—a thirty-one rounder, and when he came out of the ring, after having licked Bummer to a drooze, he showed a round head with both frog eyes closed tight, skinny cheeks puffed up to the size of a watermelon, and his nose as fine as a water, while his usual pasty skin was flushed to the color of dried beef.

On his lap he held a bag bulging with greenbacks.

Just as an ambulance drove up, a beautiful girl (hung herself upon Tidwillow, as he lay on the stretcher.

"I made a mistake last night, Tiddy, my handsome hero! I do love you—I don't know why!" she cried.

But the bunch of greenbacks knew why, and they crinkled with amuse-

If your skin itches and burns, just use Resinol

If you are suffering from eczema, ringworm or similar itching, burning, unsightly skin affection, bathe the sore places with Resinol Soap and hot water, then gently apply a little Resinol Ointment. You will probably be astonished how instantly the itching stops and healing begins. In most cases the sick skin quickly becomes clear and healthy again, at very little cost. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap also clear away pimples, redness, roughness and dandruff. Sold by all druggists.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is Multisuded coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

IF THIN AND NERVOUS, TRY PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

When one stops to consider the host of thin people who are searching continually for some method by which they may increase their flesh to normal proportions by the filling out of unsightly hollows, the rounding out of protruding angles with the attendant bloom of health and attractiveness, it is no wonder that many and varied suggestions along this line appear from time to time in public print.

While excessive thinness might be attributed to various and subtle causes in different individuals, it is a well-known fact that the lack of sufficient phosphorus in the human system is very largely responsible for this condition. Experiments on humans and animals by many scientists have demonstrated beyond question of doubt that a body deficient in phosphorus becomes nervous, sickly and thin. Noted author and professor in his books on physiology and nutrition, published in 1918, says: "The amount of phosphorus required for the normal maintenance of the body is underestimated in many of our standard text books. It is well established that this deficiency in phosphorus may now be met by the use of an organic phosphate, known throughout the English-speaking countries as Bitro-Phosphate. Through the assimilation of this phosphate by the nerve tissue, the phosphoric content when absorbed in the amount normally required by nature soon produces a welcome change in our body and mind. Nerve tension disappears, vigor and strength replace weakness and lack of energy, and the whole body soon loses its thin, bony, and abrupt angles, becoming enveloped in a glow of perfect health and beauty and the will and strength to be up and doing. It is sold by the Smith Drug Co. in Janesville and all good drug stores."

CAUTION:—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, and for making it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

The Crown of Thorns

By REV. GEORGE GUILLE
Extension Department, Moody Bible
Institute, Chicago

TEXT—And when they had platted a crown of thorns, they put it upon his head.—Matt. 27:29.

No chronicler, left to his own wisdom, would have written this story of the cross as it is written here.

Instead of a few verses, we should have found a volume, and all the descriptive powers at the writer's command would have been summoned to set forth this greatest and most important fact in all history.

The Spirit of God is the narrator of these events and he has written down just what he designed should become a part of Holy Scripture—nothing more and nothing less—so that wherever this story should be told, these things that transpired at the cross should be told in connection with it.

And the first thing written here is the epitome of all that follows: A crown of thorns upon that holy head! Last King of David's line to be crowned in Jerusalem, yet no royal diadem adorns his brow; the time for the diadem has not yet come and the thorns are the price he must pay for these.

In a holy symbolism we are to listen to the story our God so joys to tell, and which he takes every occasion to tell, though men are so slow to hear. We turn back to the opening chapters of the Bible and there, in Genesis 3, we learn what the symbolism is. There we hear God pronouncing a curse upon creation because of sin, and this is what he says: "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth unto thee . . . in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground . . . for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return." This curse abides upon all creation still and it is written that "the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now."

A famous musician has declared that all the sounds of nature are in the minor key and that all the animals express themselves. We speak of the "sighing" of the wind and the "moaning" of the sea. Ah, it is nature's sad cry because of what sin has wrought in God's fair creation.

But see! that which symbolizes the curse is woven into a crown for our lovely Lord to tell us what he has become on our behalf, "for it is written, cursed is everyone that hangeth on a tree," and thus on that cross of awful shame he answered to all the curse of sin for us.

Draining to its bitter dregs the cup of Divine wrath against sin, he has turned it into a cup of eternal blessing and his loving hand presses it to our lips. Drink, O soul, and live!

Yea, "Christ hath redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us." While upon creation the curse still abides, and the physical being of the Christian, being still a part of this groaning creation, bears the tokens of the curse, his soul is forever delivered. And this deliverance guarantees the deliverance of the very body itself, so that "the sufferings of this present time" occasioned by the curse, "are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us," "because the creature shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption," and "this body of our humiliation" shall be changed into the likeness of Christ's body of glory.

But observe how fully he has, in his own blessed person, met the curse of sin. "In sorrow shalt thou eat." But he is "The Man of Sorrows," saying as he goes to the cross for us, "Now is my soul exceeding sorrowful, even unto death." Out of his awful sorrow comes our joy. Made a curse for us "that the blessing of Abraham might come on us!"

But again: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread." And of him who bore the curse for us it is written that "His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling from him."

"Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." And Christ became that for us, and then, in that body thus prepared went into the dust of death, "made sin" in that awful place "that we might be made the righteousness of God in him."

Oh, what a Savior! A thousand shames on the soul that feels no enthusiasm over the very mention of his name!

The last word in the Old Testament is "curse," but the last word in the New Testament is "grace," and this grace is pronounced upon all who believe in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Yet a little while and he who was made a curse for us shall come out of those heavens into which he has gone and then shall the very creation itself be delivered from the curse that is upon it now, so that the earth, which never has done so, "shall yield her increase" and become a very garden of the Lord.

Brought Out His Guns. Rhineland—When Game Warden Henry Oberlander tried to force an entrance to search the home of Otto Ryschak, three lakes, for unlawful fishing nets, he was resisted by the latter and guns were produced. Ryschak was found not guilty, however, when it was decided by the court that the search warrant which the warden had did not entitle him to search for anything but game.

Golden Text: As we have opportunity let us work that which is good to ward all men. Galatians VI 10.

SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY.

It is hard for us Occidentals to appreciate the license taken by Oriental audiences in the midst of public discourse. They express their approval or dissent not only by facial and manual gesture, but by audible word. Discussions spring up among the auditors, and the speaker often has a running accompaniment of comment. It was no novel thing that the voice of a teacher of the Jewish law rang out, "Rabbi, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" It was a novel thing, dialectic guantlet tossed at Jesus' feet, that Berean roadway into an arena where he could display his hardihood and skill with his logical, logical, should at least be given the benefit of doubt to him having any special animosity against Jesus. Sacred things to him had lost their sacredness. Law and prophets were only an armor, and he was versed in law. Perhaps you have an answer in the text box of your own phylactery? As in response is given superior the religion of the old covenant was to the current religion of Judaism. They had ceased to be identical. The religion of God was not, but the religion of men was a narrow and cold system of dialectics. . . . The lawyer, conscious of his inability to keep the law in its full breadth, upon enter his Pharisaical refinement upon the question, "Who is my neighbor?" Jesus has driven the matter home to his heart, but he will desperately fend it off with his dialectics. Jesus finds it in the law of love, the subjective state; this religious dodger begs to know the objective status of those toward whom he is to exercise himself. If they are Jews and friends he will love them. More than that the paraphrases, targums, and what-nots of Pharisaism do not require of him. . . . At this point the "wideness and purity of the love which God instills in the penitent and the trustful soul is flashed out in one of the most incomparable parables that ever dropped even from the lips of Him who spoke as no man did. . . . The site of the story was "notable, not to say notorious; the personae, a wounded traveler, a priest, a Levite, a Samaritan. The priest and Levite show us "how not to do it." They are the boundary of the boundary of the sufferer may not be a Jew; if so, the law, as they interpret it, makes no demand upon them. Even if a Jew, he might die while they were binding up his wounds; and if he did, they would be ceremonially polluted and disqualified from temple service. Ah! how they had failed to learn that, if God could not have both mercy and the ceremony of sacrifice, he would choose mercy always. . . . The Samaritan does not stop to parley; he just neighbors the unfortunate man, and that is the end of it. He does it heartily and thoroughly. That naked and emaciated form makes its own plea to him, and makes it not in vain as to the others. He opens both heart and pocketbook. The commercial traveler is transformed into the trained nurse as he sits the night watches through by the sufferer's side. Only when he reached the boundary of another duty did he leave him. Even then he projected his aid into the future by the deposit he made, and the pledge he left. . . . Again, and this time beyond appeal, Jesus casts the matter back into the heart of his interlocutor, where it belonged, saying: "Who neighbored the unfortunate man?" To this, of course, there could be but one answer: "He who, rid of all racial prejudice and all selfishness, loved his fellow, and that, too, in none of the sentimentalism which ethicized in sighs and tears and flourished of lavender-scented candle, but materialized in wine, oil, and pence, a saddle and a couch." . . . Any Christianity which falls short in this test is unworthy of the name of Him who said, "Do thou likewise."

THE TEACHER'S LANTERN.

To this day a public speaker in the East needs to be ready at repartee. He is target for questions which, if he can not answer or fail, he instantly loses prestige with his auditors. A missionary in the streets of Bombay was getting on famously with his hearers until a pundit, passing called out contemptuously: "The man who invented illuminating gas did more for the world than your Jesus!" The missionary retorted: "When that man comes to die he'll need for a gas filter, I suppose." The speaker more than regained his audience. . . . The lawyer saw an opportunity to air his erudition—to tempt this influential young rabbi into the mazes of dialectics and subtle casuistry, in which he hoped to snare him, and thus elevate himself in public esteem. . . . Do to inherit. The question is based on the false notion that eternal life is of works. There is no consciousness of human inability and guilt. The lawyer would not have known what that means. "Lay your deadly doing down." . . . But the lawyer finds the way of legality as hard and forbidding as Bunyan's pilgrim. He hedges right away. He can love his neighbor, if he is allowed to define the term neighbor. Jesus does not himself define the term neighbor; but by an example, irresistible in its charm, he shows that subjective state of heart which makes a neighbor to all his fellows. . . . Divine religion has its mark in that it is epitomized with extraordinary facility. The scribes heaped up great casuistical burdens for men's backs. Their prohibitions and positive precepts were fairly bewildering and interminable. But Jesus sweeps them all aside, puts instead of them one word: Love. . . . By chance there came down a certain priest that way—better by concurrence. A better definition could not be given; not indeed, of providence, which is a divine order, but of the which the Bible has no equivalent, but for the concrete reality of God's providing. . . . He provides through a concurrence of circumstances, all in themselves natural and in the suggestion of ordinary causation (and this distinguishes it from the miracle), but the concurring of which is directed and overruled by him. And this helps us to put aside those coarse tests to the reality of prayer and of the direct rule of God which men some time propose. Such stately ships ride not in such shallow waters. Luke X (Eldersheim II, 135).

THE POLY OF PRIDE.

Pride is a camellion vice. It keeps a whole wardrobe of costumes and masks and struts the stage in many a role. Paradoxical, but one may even be proud of his humility. Many a man views his achievements, real or fancied, and says in actions louder than words, "Is not this great Babylon that I have builded?" The end of Babel was confusion. Pride is the sure path to destruction, but the trap door is always strewn with flowers.

FULTON

Fulton, Aug. 21.—Wednesday, in D. F. Sayre's grove, was held the annual community picnic. Games and various amusements held the attention of the youngsters and basket games during the day kept up the intense enthusiasm of all. Owing to some difficulty Footville was not represented on the diamond, so the opposing team, Hard ware, played Edgerton business men. Many people from various surrounding villages and cities were in attendance, and each family on the grounds had a picnic dinner.

Sunday, Aug. 24, in the absence of a regular pastor, Rev. George Wilson of New York state will fill the pulpit. He is a forceful speaker and will have a good message. Mrs. Wilson will be remembered as Miss Frances Gardiner.

J. Mullenbach, Chicago, is visiting his family here.

Mrs. Harry Heimerdinger, Chicago, is visiting her mother, Mrs. A. Ellefson.

Last Saturday evening invitations had been issued for the community to hold a surprise faro party on a regular pastor, Rev. Road, and family. Everyone contributed towards the lunch and a purse was collected to give the pastor and wife some little token of the great esteem in which they were held. The hall was decorated in woodland effect for the occasion. The Rev. and Mrs. Road and son, Junior, left the first of the week for Chicago and the east to look up schools for the coming year.

Mrs. Brown, Milton Junction, is renewing old acquaintances in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Neslund are entertaining company from St. Louis.

WISCONSIN LEADS IN LIBERTY LOANS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Aug. 22.—Wisconsin ranks ahead of the sister states in the liberty loan subscriptions, according to a report made public. The letter is written by W. L. Ross and E. J. Kearney, who had charge of the drives in the seventh loan district. The letter says: "The undersigned feel that it is due to the county chairman who directed the sale of the liberty loans in the 45 counties of Wisconsin in the seventh federal reserve district, to know that Wisconsin's total for the five loans led the five state divisions of the seventh district in percentage of subscriptions to allotments."

"The final figures in the report of the federal reserve bank of Chicago are ranked as follows: Wisconsin, 128 percent; Michigan, 126; Illinois, 118; Iowa, 113; Indiana, 112."

"Cook county (Chicago) is not included in the above total; the urban character of Cook county making its situation so different from that of the five state divisions that they cannot be fairly compared."

"Banking resources have been accepted as probably the most reliable criterion of the purchasing power of a community, and judged by this standard Wisconsin's leadership in the liberty loans is again demonstrated. The percent of banking resources subscribed by the various units is as follows: Wisconsin, 72.43 percent; Illinois, 67.54; Indiana, 63.63; Michigan, 62.74; Cook county, 58.2; Iowa, 52.74."

B. J. Taylor shipped a carload of wheat from the local siding on Thursday.

Torres Everson, who recently sold his farm west of the village in the town of Spring Valley, has purchased another on the Hanover road, in the township of Plymouth.

Dutch and Belgian Agreements Remote

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, Aug. 22.—The reply of the Dutch government to the statement of Belgium in connection with the revision of the treaty of 1839, was placed before the commission charged with the revision today by Jonkheer Van Swinderen, former Dutch minister to the United States and former minister of foreign affairs. It is learned on good authority that an agreement in the case is as remote as ever. The viewpoint of the Dutch, it is said, is firmly against the desires of Belgium.
